Use inclusive language

As a teaching team, discuss the language you use to describe students' well-being and their learning needs.

Consider the impact of identifying students through phrases such as "struggling readers", "low achievers", "special needs students," or "slow learners".

Instead take an evidence-based approach. Focus on what students can do and articulate next steps in their learning that both the students and their families can understand and embrace.

This information was downloaded/printed from the Ministry of Education's website "Inclusive Education". Except where otherwise noted it is Crown Copyright 2018.

Information on the Inclusive Education website is regularly updated so we recommend you check the website version of this information to ensure it remains current.