

Times of high risk

Put processes in place to ensure a timely response to an anaphylactic reaction.

Learners are most at risk when:

- their routine is broken, for example, during sports days
- they are at morning tea and lunch
- they are off site on excursions or camps
- immediate access to medical services is not available, for example, when tramping
- staff changes occur, for example, when relief staff are working
- participating in activities involving food, such as cooking lessons.

This information was downloaded/printed from the Ministry of Education's website "Inclusive Education". Except where otherwise noted it is Crown Copyright 2018.

Information on the Inclusive Education website is regularly updated so we recommend you check the website version of this information to ensure it remains current.
