

Check for hearing loss

Hearing is critical to communication development.

Mild or fluctuating hearing loss can have a significant impact on learning and development.

A child or young person may have underlying speech, language, and communication needs (SLCN) if you observe the following indicators:

- difficulty understanding and following instructions
- difficulty explaining what they want and need
- difficulty understanding and expressing their feelings and the emotions of others
- appear to ignore what they have been asked to do or do the wrong thing because they have misunderstood what is meant
- difficulties retelling situations, events and stories
- frequently responding to questions with short generic responses such as "I dunno".

Use this communication checklist to guide and gather further observations.

This information was downloaded/printed from the Ministry of Education's website "Inclusive Education". Except where otherwise noted it is Crown Copyright 2018.

Information on the Inclusive Education website is regularly updated so we recommend you check the website version of this information to ensure it remains current.

