

Invest in joint learning with whānau

Joint interventions have the greatest impact of all approaches.

They help parents or other community members support student learning and wellbeing.

They also engage teachers in professional learning and development.

For example:

- Reading Together® programme (Biddulph Education Trust Ltd.)
- Tilting the Seesaw for Teams (Autism NZ)
- Co-development of te reo Māori audio recordings of books, made by elders, to support children's language learning and reading
- Training parents and teachers to work together to identify how to best support children's learning
- Ākonga regularly reading their books alongside kuia and kaumatua at ELS/school
- Kaumātua or manawhenua sharing stories with ākonga and kaiako about significant landmarks and historical events in their local region
