

Support understanding

Communication (including speech and language) is essential to sharing and making sense of knowledge and information.

Support communication using a range of communication modes:

- text
- speech
- movement
- illustration
- storyboards
- video and online tools.

Ensure that all students understand the task before they start working. Breaking the task into manageable chunks can support understanding.

It is important to note that language delay may not reflect a student's cognitive skills or ability to learn.
