

NZ information and support providers in the private sector

The Dyslexia Foundation of NZ has compiled a list of NZ private sector organisations that provide information and tools for people with dyslexia.

It is important to recognise whether the information and programmes offered by private organisations are based on well-researched methodology. Where applicable, discuss this with parents and work together to provide continuity of learning for students. You can seek advice from your learning support team including your SENCO, Learning Support Coordinator, RTLB, or RTLit.
