

Design the environment together

Some students feel bombarded by sensory information. Others seek out intense sensory experiences.

Those who have sensory process difficulties misinterpret everyday sensory information such as touch, sight, sound, movement, and smell.

Discuss things that ākonga and whānau notice in the classroom. Include things they:

- smell
- see
- hear
- feel
- taste.

Use the information to guide your design of the environment.

Select strategies to reduce sensory overload.

This information was downloaded/printed from the Ministry of Education's website "Inclusive Education". Except where otherwise noted it is Crown Copyright 2018.

Information on the Inclusive Education website is regularly updated so we recommend you check the website version of this information to ensure it remains current.
