Successful family-school partnerships

Key factors critical to strengthening schools' engagement with parents.

- ✓ Leadership: Engagement between schools and their communities works well when there is vision and commitment from school leaders to working in partnership with all parents.
- ✓ Relationships: Mutual trust and respect are critical to relationships in which staff and parents share responsibility for children's learning and well-being.
- ✓ School culture: Inclusive schools enable all parents to be actively involved in decisions affecting their child and respond promptly to parents' concerns and questions.
- ✓ Partnership: Learning partnerships strengthen parents' involvement in their child's education. Parents feel that their contributions are valued. Effective learning partnerships have positive impacts on student outcomes.
- ✓ Community networks: Schools are an integral part of their communities. Parent and community expertise contributes to school programmes and activities. Networks are built through effective consultation.
- ✓ Communication: Timely, useful, and easily understood communication with parents provides opportunities to exchange information. Barriers to effective communication are actively identified and overcome.

Involve parents and whānau

Response from parent research.

Increasing whānau and iwi authority and involvement in education is critical to improving presence, engagement, and achievement. To achieve this, parents and whānau must be actively involved in decision-making and their children's learning in all education settings.
