

Consider parent perspectives

Parents of children needing additional support found that some schools were not open to working with them, and they felt that they were unwelcome.

They struggled with entrenched attitudes of some school staff to their child and his or her learning or behavioural needs.

For some parents, labelling their child and themselves, sometimes linked to previous family history with the school, undermined the development of constructive relationships.

This information was downloaded/printed from the Ministry of Education's website "Inclusive Education". Except where otherwise noted it is Crown Copyright 2018.

Information on the Inclusive Education website is regularly updated so we recommend you check the website version of this information to ensure it remains current.

---

