

Support school-wide inclusive practices

Invest in building teachers' skills, expertise, and confidence.

- Take time to listen to teachers' needs and concerns.
- Support reflective processes such as teaching as inquiry and support teacher learning about inclusive practices
- Link teachers to experienced professionals beyond the school to develop knowledge and understanding.
- Support parent/teacher connections – they are the experts about their child.
- Connect teachers with other teachers who have experience in inclusive practices and talking about inclusion.
- Cluster with other schools for training and development.
- Support collective responsibility for students in your school.
- Support your teachers openly sharing classroom practices, learning from each other, and problem-solving together.
