Ideas to support parental engagement

Considerations for engaging Pacific parents.

- ✓ Face-to-face communication is an important part of personalising engagement.
- ✓ Parents may not be confident speaking English. Find out whether you will need an interpreter or community liaison person before meeting.
- ✓ Create a welcoming environment, offer food and refreshments.
- ✓ Ask for the correct pronunciation of names when first meeting.
- ✓ Consider how to show respect to parents and family, for example, by dressing conservatively.
- ✓ Hold meetings in Pacific community venues where possible to make it easier for those parents who find the school environment challenging.
- ✓ Ask parents what times of the day work best for meetings.
- ✓ Identify a staff member as a key liaison person for Pacific families. Having a senior teacher (particularly in secondary schools) responsible for improving educational outcomes for Pacific learners indicates that their children's learning is seen as a priority.

Approaches to progress reporting

Pacific parents expect honest reporting about their child's progress and achievement.

- Use honest and straightforward language to talk about achievement, both areas of success and areas to strengthen.
- Discuss with families ways they can support their child in their learning at home.
- Invite Pacific parents and families into school to see how learning is supported in the classroom.
- Contact parents sooner rather than later when concerns or issues arise regarding their children's education or well-being.
- Regularly contact parents to share their children's achievements.
- Inform parents about celebrations of their children's achievement, especially when their children are receiving awards or certificates at assembly.
