

Identify and minimise barriers in your subject

Identifying common barriers in your subject area?

A UDL approach intentionally anticipates, identifies and addresses barriers up front to ensure learning environments are equitable and free from discrimination and bias.

Engagement Supporting motivation, interest, identity and self regulation.
What barriers to engagement might ākongā experience in the design of my lesson? <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Interest in topic • 	Supports: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Option for learners to identify own topic •
Representation Supporting access to information, creating flexible content and building understanding.
What barriers to accessing and understanding information might ākongā experience in the way I communicate and present information (instructions, content and materials)? <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Text heavy content 	Supports: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Model and offer text-to-speech options •
Action and expression Supporting access to learning materials, personal organisation, expressing thinking and learning.
What barriers to participating and demonstrating learning might ākongā experience in the design of my lesson? <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • End of term quiz online • 	Supports: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Incorporate a variety of assessment formats •

Source:

Universal Design for Learning: Theory and practice

http://udltheorypractice.cast.org/reading?3&loc=intro.xml_11969952

View full image \(236 KB\)

This information was downloaded/printed from the Ministry of Education's website "Inclusive Education". Except where otherwise noted it is Crown Copyright 2018.

Information on the Inclusive Education website is regularly updated so we recommend you check the website version of this information to ensure it remains current.

